Italy v Scotland

Saturday, 17 March 2018, Kick-off: 13:30, Stadio Olimpico, Referee: Pascal Gauzere (France)

Match Facts

- Scotland have won four of the last five matches between these sides in the Six Nations, including the last two in a row; they've not won three consecutive games against the Azzurri in the Championship since 2001-2003.
- Scotland have won on each of their last two trips to Rome in the Six Nations, this after winning just two of their previous seven away to Italy (L5).
- Scotland have lost 17 of their last 19 away games in the Six Nations (W2), however their two victories in that run both came in Rome.
- Meanwhile Italy have lost their last 16 games in the Six Nations, the longest such run in the Championship's history; one more defeat would equal the longest losing run in the Five or Six Nations (France – L17, 1911-1920).
- Pascal Gauzère will take charge of his sixth Six Nations game, with his previous five all involving either Italy or Scotland, including the clash between these sides in last year's Championship which Scotland won 29-0.

England v Ireland

Saturday, 17 March 2018, Kick-off: 14:45, Twickenham Stadium, Referee: Angus Gardner (Australia)

Match Facts

- Ireland come into this game having won the Six Nations already, they've won three of the last five Championships, all under Joe Schmidt.
- Ireland will be aiming to complete the Grand Slam for just the third time, having previously managed it in 1948 and 2009.
- England have won four of the last six meetings between these sides in the Six Nations (L2), with each of the last four games being won by the home side on the day.
- England have won their last 15 home games in all competitions, only on four occasions has a tier one side won more consecutive matches at home (New Zealand three times, England once).
- Meanwhile, Ireland have won their last 11 Test matches, their longest ever winning run; only New Zealand (seven occasions), South Africa (three occasions) and England (twice) have gone on longer such runs in all competitions.

Wales v France

Saturday, 17 March 2018, Kick-off: 17:00, Principality Stadium, Referee: Ben O'Keeffe (New Zealand)

Match Facts

- Wales have won five of the last six games between these sides in the Six Nations, however France won their most recent encounter last year.
- Wales have won their last three matches against France at the Principality Stadium, restricting Les Bleus to no more than 10 points on each occasion, this after losing five of their previous six at home to France in the Championship.
- France have won just two of their last nine away games in the Six Nations (L7), while Wales have won seven of their last eight at home (L1).
- Ben O'Keeffe will take charge of a Six Nations game for the second time, with Les Bleus involved in his only previous Championship game – a 40-18 victory against Italy last year.
- Wales' next victory will be their 250th in Four/Five/Six Nations history, a tally only England (258) have reached.
